GYPSIES. - Among other secrets of the gypsy race is the art of preparing what they term the "drei." or "dri," a most deadly and destructive agent, and for which medical science knows no antidote. Analysis detects no obnoxious properties whatever, and the most careful examination, microscopical or otherwise, shows it simply to consist of apparently harmless vege-table matter. The "drei," then, is merely a brown powder, obtained from a species of fungus forming the nearest connecting link between the animal and vegetable kingdoms, the powder consisting of an infinity of sporules.

These fungoid sporules possess the peculiar property of being further developed only by intimate contact with living animal matter (as when swallowed, &c.); they then throw out innumerable greenish-yellow fibres about twelve or eighteen inches in length. When the "drei" is administered, usually in some warm drinks, these sporules are swallowed, attach themselves to the mucous membrane, germinate, throw out millions of these silky fibres, which grow with awful rapidity, first producing symptoms of hectic fever, then cough, eventually accompanied by incessant spitting of blood, till death finally inevitably supervenes, usually in a fortuight or three weeks' time.

A case of this discription occurred in Italy in 1860. Although the patient was attended by eminent physicians accustomed to deal with cases of slow poisoning, no suspicion of foul play were entertained till the day after the decease, when an autopsy being held, revealed the cause of death. The fibres, the growth of which had ceased with the cessation of animal life and heat that had supported them, were partially decomposed; had another day or two clapsed, no trace would have been left of the foul deed. If the analysis of the mixture in question reveal no deleterious drug, let a dog or other animal be dosed with "three drops'. in some warm vehicle. The result would show whether the brown powder is or is not the world-famous and destructive "drei."

ADVENTURES WITH A POT OF PAINT.-Old Mr. Watson, on Nelson street, has got a little bill to pay. He sent a man down town for a pot of paint and a ladder. The man got the paint and then went to a lumber yard after a ladder. Then he tied the paint pot on the end of the ladder had put the ladder on his shoulder. This was a very smart arrangement and the man himself admired it very much. He started for home this way, and didn't find any trouble in getting along the first block, because people had an impression that a long ladder with a pot of yellow paint dangling on the end of it wasn't exactly the thing to trifle with, so they balanced along on the curbstone or rubbed up against the buildings. Pretty soon the man saw somebody in a store he knew and he turned around to speake to him, and drove one end of the ladder into a milinery case and knocked the crown out of an eighteen dollar bonnet. Then he backed off in affright, and knocked down two sewing machine agents with the other end. Then he started to turn around, and an old gentleman, who was desperately endeavoring to pull his wife out of danger saw the peril, and shouted out "Hi, there!" But it was too late. The pot struck against an awning post, tipped to one side, and the entire contents went over the aged couple. This so startled the man that he whirled dompletely around, smashing in an entire store front, frightening a milk man's team, and knocking over some thirteen persons who were actively dodging about to get out of the way. Then he dropped the ladder and fled into the country, shouting "murder" and "fire" at every jump. A regular ordaned painter is now engaged on Mr. Watsou's house. - Danbury News.

Don Carlos, the claimant to the throne of Spain, has been interviewed by one of the ubiquitous reporters of the New York Herald. The Monarch who wears a fruitless crown justifies his present course by saying that the act by which the throne of Spain was given to Isabella was a violation of the organic law of the kingdom, therefore illegal, and he proposes to continue the fight for the rights of his house begun by his grand-father. His programme of Government is that everything shall be done through a free Cortes. There shall be complete decentralization in everything but general much reason to fear his intrigues or hostility. As to Cuba he holds the abolition of slavery to be indispensible, but gradual and not at the expense of the proprietors. No Government, however, dare allude in Spain to the alienation

MR. PADWICK is the realization of a figure familar enough to the readers of the modern English novel—the bill-discounter who lends money to the heir at one or two hundred per cent. and swallows up all his estates when he comes into possession of them. His profits must be something enormous. From the ruined Marquis of Hastings he derived a good fortune, he holds, a lien upon the town residence and the manor of the Duke of Hamilton, and recently a judgment for $450,000 against the Duke of New Castle has been awarded him. He has lately been the defendant in a suit with Sir Alexander Stewart, whereby the latter endeavored to break a contract with his late father, Sir William Stewart, and Mr. Padwick surrendering the nobleman's estates for the consideration of $1,750,000. Padwick has tri-umphed and thus another fine property falls into his voracious maw. The circumstance suggests an inquiry as to how many of the manorlal estates of England are really in the hands of these usurious money-lenders.

This distressing Affection—which renders life miserable and marriage impossible—is the penalty paid by the victims of improper indulgencies. Young persons are too apt to commit excesses from not being aware of the dreadful consequences that may ensue. Now, who that understands the subject will pretend to deny that the natural powers are lost sooner by those falling into improper habits than by the prudent? Besides being deprived of the pleasure of healthy offspring, the most serious and destructive symptoms of both body and mind arise. TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE. Dr. J. addresses all those who have injured themselves by improper indulgence and solitary habits, which ruin both body and mind, unfitting them for either business, study, society or marriage.

These are some of the sad and melancholy effeets produced by the early habits of youth, viz: Weakness of the Back and Limbs, Pains in the Hend, Dimness of Sight, Loss of muscular Power, Palpitation of the Heart, Dyspepsia, Nervous Irritability, Derangement of the Digestive Func-tions, General Debility, Symtoms of Consump-

MARRIAGE Reflect that a sound mind and body are the most necessary requisites to promote connubial happiness. Indeed, without these the journey through life becomes a weary pilgrimage, the prospect hourly darkens to the view, the mind becomes shadowed with despair, and filled with the melancholy reflection that the happiness of another is blighted with our own.

DISEASES OF IMPRUDENCE. When the misguided and imprudent votary of pleasure finds that he has imbibed the seeds of this painful disease, it too often happens that an ill-timed sense of shame or dread of discovery deters him from applying to those who, from edu-cation and respectability, can alone befriend him, delaying till the constitutional symptoms of the horrid disease makes their appearance, such as ulcerated sore throat, diseased nose, nocturnal pains in the head and limbs, dimness of sight, deafness, nodes on the shin bones and arms; blotches on the head, face and extremities, progressing with frightful rapidity, till at last the painte of the mouth or the bones of the nose fall in, and the victim of this awful disease becomes a horrid object of commisseration till death puts a period to his dreadful suffering, by sending him to that undiscovered country "from whence no traveller returns."

It is a melancholy fact that thousands DIE in depair layers him with ruined Health to sigh in despair leaves him with ruined Health to sigh over his galling disappointment.
